

Elounda Beach Hotel lies on a secluded bay protected by barrier islands, with majestic mountains for a backdrop. As the first hotel on Crete's northeast coast, this resort is considered one of Greece's finest.

The property includes several mini-resort-like clusters, like the Yachting Club, whose state-of-the-art bungalows have electric sliding glass doors, retractable television screens, and the Ambassador's Bungalows with private gyms. There are also multi-room villa options for families. The hotel features a total number of 244 rooms.

Guests can enjoy the peace and quiet of acclaimed spa "Espace Vitalité Chenot" or a quiet meal at one of the nine world-class restaurants. The hotel's dining options range from Mediterranean to Asian flavors, all featuring contemporary décor, unique scenery and unparalleled service. Crete's cultural offerings are nearby but many guests hardly leave the property after entering the oasis of this exclusive resort.
